FUNERAL OF J. J. HAMILTON

Services Conducted at the First Presbyterian Church.

Funeral services over the remains of the late Attorney James J. H. Hamilton were conducted yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church by Rev. James M. Leod, D. D., and Rev. S. C. Logan, D. D., pastor and pastor emeritus, respectively.

The judiciary and bar was largely represented in the assemblage which attended the services. The pall-bearers were: Attorney W. E. Huslander, A. B. Clay, Joseph Baumelster and H. C. McKenzie.

The remains will be taken on the 6 o'clock train by way of the Bloomsburg division of the Lackawanna, this morning, to be interred in Academia, Juniata county, beside the home of his father. The remains will be accompanied by his mother, sister and two brothers, residents of Easton.

At the meeting of the bar association Saturday the following resolutions were adopted:

The bar of Lackawanna county for the fourth time this year, by the assent of one of its honored members, James J. H. Hamilton departed this life early on the morning of Nov. 17.

Resolved, That this committee be constituted of future members of the bar, one of great promise, embracing a notable record as student, teacher, author, orator and practitioner. He was possessed of a clear and well furnished intellect, which made luminous the most obscure problems of his profession. But his erudition was fully matched by his probity and uncompromising honesty. His brethren will bear witness that he was immovable from what he deemed the standpoint of right and justice. Had he been spared, these qualities were the guarantee of future greatness.

Such a character is rare, and his departure from among us will leave a vacancy not easy to fill, either in the profession, the church, or society at large. Resolved, That this minute be published in the daily papers of the city and a

SCHEME TO KEEP PRISONERS AT HOME

OUR COLONY AT PENITENTIARY TO BE DECREASED.

Many Prisoners Who Must Be Sentenced to Imprisonment at Hard Labor Will Hereafter Be Kept in the County Jail—The Committee of the Prison Board Got Some Valuable Information by Its Visit to Various County Prisons of the State—To Frame a Report.

One of the possible results of this county taking advantage of the law permitting the employment of prisoners in all county prisons and workhouses throughout the state, is the doing away with the sending of prisoners to the penitentiary and the consequent saving of many hundreds of dollars to the county.

For certain grades of crimes, where a penalty of a year's imprisonment or more is inflicted, the law stipulates that it shall be "at hard labor."

Until the passage of the act mentioned above, there was no provision made for the employment of inmates of county prisons, except in certain of the older counties, which are organized under special acts, and which are especially authorized to exact work from the inmates of their prisons.

In this county, when a sentence of a year or more is imposed, the convict is sent to the Eastern penitentiary, and the county is charged with the expense of his keeping, minus the small amount the prisoner might earn during his incarceration, which in the majority of cases would not much more than pay his barber bills.

TOUR OF INSPECTION.

County Commissioners S. W. Roberts and John Demuth and Warden W. T. Simpson, at the instance of the new county prison board, started out last Wednesday to study the methods of employing prisoners, as followed in Schuylkill, Northumberland, Lehigh and Berks counties, which have for years exacted work from the inmates of their county prisons, by authority of the special acts under which they were organized.

They found that these countries make it a practice of keeping at the home prison nearly all their convicts. Some of these counties have for years sentenced only such convicts as are sentenced for extremely long terms for second degree murder or the like. Prisoners serving sentences of five or six years are not at all uncommon in the prisons of these counties.

They are making a weaving carpet and knitting stockings by hand power machinery and it proves very profitable, as the law permits these prisoners to work ten per cent. of the inmates and only limits the outputs to what is used in the prison "or applied to the use of the prison," which practically is no limit at all.

THEY HAD DREAMS.

Sunday Papers Wrong Regarding Carlucci Stone Yard—The Fort Wayne Plant Coming.

Frank Carlucci, the well known stone contractor of this city, when seen last night at his home on Millin avenue by a Tribune man, was in a high state of indignation over articles which appeared in two of the Sunday newspapers.

One of these came out with a story relating how Mr. Carlucci intended to move his stone yard from its present location on Scranton street to land near the city and a bit works. This move would bring the yard in close proximity with the Delaware and Hudson. Therefore, deduced the Sherlock Holmes-like Sunday scribes, Mr. Carlucci intends transferring all his contracts and the Delaware and Hudson, thereby dealing a severe blow to the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, which formerly had a monopoly of his shipping business.

In this move, further said the wily men of the pen, William Hallstead's backer, talking this means to "knock up against the new management of the Lackawanna."

Mr. Carlucci stated last evening that he has been maintaining a stone yard at Fort Wayne, Ind., a yard as large as the one here, and has decided to transfer this branch to Scranton, where he can have it under his own eye and supervision. He has accordingly purchased a large tract of land from the Lackawanna Iron and Coal company, about four acres in size, near the bolt and nut works, and will establish the new works there.

The Scranton street works will be kept up also for the present at least. In the new yard a switch has already been laid by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railway, which shows that no rupture has occurred between the management of that company and Mr. Carlucci.

The latter says that the new management of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western has treated him with the utmost liberality and an open-handedness, and he has no complaint at all to make. A Delaware and Hudson switch has also been laid, as was stated by the Sunday papers, but it will only be used for the transportation of stone from Vermont and the other New England states, which neither the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western does not touch.

Regarding Mr. Hallstead, Mr. Carlucci says his dealings with him have always been of a strictly business nature, and further they have never gone beyond that.

It is expected that the new yard will be finished about April 1, as work has already been begun on it. The new works will employ between fifty and sixty men and will be conducted on a large basis.

COAL IS TO BE SCARCE.

Car Supplies Will Restrict the Amount Produced.

While it is altogether too early to talk of a general scarcity of anthracite or anything resembling a hard coal famine, yet it is evident that coal is going to be hard to get.

Car supply is bound to restrict the amount the collieries can send forward and colder weather is bound to increase buying. The actual production of last month was 4,897,624 tons, about 750,000 tons ahead of October, 1898, while shipments to Oct. 1 are 5,700,000 ahead of last year's output to the same date.—Engineering and Mining Journal.

MOLINEAUX FARCE CAN'T OCCUR HERE

BARRED IN THIS STATE BY A RULING OF JUDGE ARCHBOLD

System of Examining Jurors as Pursued in the Famous New York Trial Now was Attempted in the Van Horn Murder Case, but Was Forbidden by Judge Archbold. Previous to That There Was Nothing in Pennsylvania Bearing Specifically Upon the Matter.

Many laymen have been heard asking why it is the examination of jurors as practiced in the Molineaux case is never followed here. When the query was propounded to Judge Archbold Saturday his answer was, in substance, that in New York state the practice permits it, while in this state there has nothing as yet been brought forward to show that it would be permissible, and the Van Horn murder trial, over which Judge Archbold presided, gave birth to a ruling expressly prohibiting it.

At the time of the Van Horn trial Attorney L. P. Wedeman and E. W. Thayer, counsel for the defense, sought to introduce this method of qualifying, or rather disqualifying jurors, contending that it was practiced in the trial in New York and that there was nothing in the Pennsylvania code prohibiting it.

Judge Archbold refused to allow it, on the ground that it was specially permitted in the New York code, while in Pennsylvania it was not only not specially allowed, but theory and practice were both against it. The case was reviewed by the supreme court and the rulings of Judge Archbold sustained, making it an established precedent.

SAME PRINCIPLE.

The questions asked or attempted to be asked in the Van Horn case, while not as far reaching, not to say ridiculous as those propounded in the New York trial, involved the same principle.

Jurors were asked, for instance, their opinion on the merits of the plea of insanity as a defense in a murder trial and whether or not they would be prejudiced against the defendant if it developed that the trial that he was guilty of criminal relations with his victim.

Judge Archbold in ruling these questions to be inadmissible said they were improper because based on something that was not up to that time in the case. "Something in the air," he put it.

The defendant's counsel argued that these questions were on all fours with the permissible questions as to whether or not a juror would be prejudiced for or against a defendant because of his race or color.

This was met by Judge Archbold with a fine distinction between the two cases. In the first, it was unquestioned that there was nothing in the case up to that juncture to show that the plea of insanity would be entered or that it would be established that the defendant had done anything to cause him to be viewed with disfavour in any very strict ideas of morality.

RACE OR COLOR QUESTION.

On the other hand, the race or color of a defendant was assuredly in the case from the very inception, because to get down to first principles, a case must have a defendant, and a defendant, it is reasonable to infer, will have a race and a color, if not both.

Commenting upon the Molineaux case, Judge Archbold said: "We are to be congratulated that Pennsylvania does not permit of such a senseless practice of examining jurors. To my mind it is highly ridiculous and cannot help, but tend to lower the dignity of the courts and bring them into disrepute."
